Air Travel with a Disability

This fact sheet has general information. It is not intended as legal advice. Only an attorney can give you legal advice to help you with a problem, or answer a question.

Air Carriers Access Act (ACAA)

The Air Carriers Access Act (ACAA) requires airlines to provide equal treatment for people with disabilities. Since people with disabilities are a diverse group, it is important for each individual to understand what accommodations they will need and communicate them to airline staff.

Before You Fly

Some accommodations require a 48-hour advance notice and a 1-hour advance check-in. These accommodations include:

- medical oxygen
- a respirator
- an electric wheelchair
- acid-batteries for wheelchairs

(14 C.F.R §382.27)

Although its not required for all accommodations, it is good practice to let the airline know in advance that you intend to fly and that you will need assistance. Airline staff is required to assist you with boarding and exiting a plane.

(14 C.F.R. §382.91)

The airline cannot charge you extra because of your disability. Service animals are permitted, and additional pet charges do not apply.

(14 C.F.R. §382.117)

(a) as a carrier, you must permit a service animal to accompany a passenger with a disability.

(d) as evidence that an animal is a service animal, you must accept identification cards, other written documentation, presence of harnesses, tags, or the credible verbal assurances of a qualified individual with a disability using the animal.

(e) emotional support or psychiatric service animal, you are not required to accept the animal for transportation in the cabin UNLESS the passenger provides you with current documentation (no older than one year from the date of the passenger’s scheduled initial flight) on the letterhead of a licensed mental health professional stating the following:

1. The passenger has a mental or emotional disability, recognized in the DSM IV
2. the passenger needs the emotional support or psychiatric service animal as an accommodation for air travel and/or for activity at the passenger’s destination;
3. the individual providing the assessment is a licensed mental health professional, and the passenger is under his or her professional care; and
4. the date and type of the mental health professional’s license and the state or other jurisdiction in which it was issued.

(f) never required to accommodate certain unusual service animals (e.g., snakes, other reptiles, ferrets, rodents and spiders) as service animals in the cabin. With respect to all other animals, including unusual or exotic animals that are presented as service animals (e.g. miniature horses, pigs, monkeys) as a carrier you must determine whether any factors preclude their traveling in the cabin as a service animals (too heavy/large, direct threat to health or safety, disruption of cabin service, prohibited from entering country of destination) if no such factors preclude the animal from traveling in the cabin, you must permit it to do so. However, as a foreign carrier, you are not required to carry service animals other than dogs.

(g) whenever you decide not to accept an animal as a service animal, you must explain the reason for your decision to the passenger and document it in writing.
Medical Certification and Attendants

The airline is allowed to require medical certification for people with disabilities ONLY in rare occasions. These include:

- traveling in a stretcher;
- traveling with an incubator;
- requiring oxygen during a flight;
- requiring medical assistance during a flight;
- when traveling with a communicable disease.

(14 C.F.R. §382.23)

In some situations an airline may also require a person with a disability to fly with an attendant. When the carrier and the passenger disagree about whether an attendant is necessary, the carrier may require the attendant but cannot charge for the attendant’s transportation.

(14 C.F.R. §382.29)

Upon Arrival

People with disabilities have to go through security like all other passengers. Security is entitled to look through all the passenger’s belongings, including their assistive devices. Airlines may not make passengers sign liability waivers for their wheelchairs, or other devices.

(14 C.F.R. §382.35)

Airlines have to let a person with a disability have their assistive devices close to their seat and cannot count these assistive devices as carry-on items.

(14 C.F.R. §382.121)

Sometimes wheelchairs will have to be stored away from the passenger.

Complaints

All air carriers are legally required to have a Complaint Resolution Official (CRO) available to travelers at all times.

(14 C.F.R. §382.151)

The CRO’s job is to resolve any violations of the ACAA. If you feel discriminated against because of your disability, then you will be able to contact the CRO immediately. If you are still not happy with the service, you may file a formal complaint by sending a written complaint. The official written complaint should include all flight information, the name of the CRO who assisted you, the date of travel and copies of any written response received from the CRO. The airline will have 30 days to respond to the complaint.

(14 C.F.R. §382.155)

(c) as an carrier, you are not required to respond to a complaint postmarked or transmitted more than 45 days after the date of the incident, except for complaints referred to you by the Department of Transportation.

If you are still dissatisfied with the resolution, you may contact the Department of Transportation (DOT) at Department of Transportation, Aviation Consumer Protection Division, C-75, 400 Seventh St, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20590. Make sure to include copies of all correspondence related to the matter.

For More Information...

If you have further questions, or would like more information in general, please contact the Disability Law Center (DLC). Our services are available statewide and free of charge. Materials are also available in alternative formats such as audio, large-print, Braille and Spanish.

Call (800) 662-9080 or visit our office to speak confidentially with a Short Term Assistance Advocate. Office hours are Monday-Friday, 9:00 AM to 4:00 PM.

Disability Law Center
205 North 400 West
Salt Lake City, UT 84103
(800) 662-9080
disabilitylawcenter.org/contact disabilitylawcenter.org/accessibility

This publication is funded in part by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, the Center for Mental Health Services, the U.S. Department of Education and the Social Security Administration. The contents of this publication are the sole responsibility of the authors and do not represent the official view of these agencies.